Friday 24th March: Avalonian Trio

Back by popular demand, due to rain and flooding of the area upsetting their last concert in June. The Avalonian Trio (Bridget Bolliger flute, Susan Blake cello, John Martin piano) bring a delicious mix of romance and classicism with more than a hint of swing, laced with anecdote and sparkle! Great classical and lighter styles are among the delights in this concert of colour and virtuosity. The Avalonian Trio will bring the gift of a memorable evening of musical delight and variety that is unmissable.

Friday 12th May: Monet: The Flowers of War

Be transported to France in the last days of the Belle Epoque, in the story of an iconic artist losing his greatest gift – his ability to see. Facing the death of everything he loves, everything meaningful to him, he creates more work than any other artist during WW1, as he looks back on the world that is being lost - “le monde perdu”. This concert of sublime visual projections and French music brings together the paintings Monet created at Giverny during the Great War including his Japanese Bridges, Water Lilies, Weeping Willows, and the Alley of Roses, alongside music written in 1914-1918 by serving or volunteering French composers such as Debussy, Ravel, Koechlin and Boulanger. This is a music+art / multimedia concert, featuring artists Jane Rutter, flute, Andrew Goodwin, tenor, Tamara-Anna Cislowska, piano, Christopher Latham, violin and David Pereira, cello.

Sunday 23rd July: First Prize Winner 2016 Sydney International Piano Competition, Andrey Gugnin

Andrey will perform a wonderful program featuring works by J.S.Bach, Franz Schubert, Dmitri Shostakovich, Leonid Desyatnikov and Michael Kieran-Harvey.

Friday 3rd November: Ensemble Aspherical

A new and exciting chamber group formed by four leading Sydney classical musicians who enjoy performing elegant and engaging music. The vibrancy and warmth of the violin and viola strings combine with the ethereal qualities of the flute and harp to create sounds and evoke images for the listener both congenial and colourful.

Featuring sisters Marina and Justine Marsden (violin and viola), harpist, Louise Johnson and Flautist, Janet Web.
