

Creating Inspiration: Shaping sustainable behaviour through the arts

Keynote speaker David Curtis

This talk has been rescheduled from March.

David Curtis, ecologist and environmental sociologist, will present a talk on how the arts can influence sustainable behaviour.

Participants will have the opportunity to discuss some of their own ideas for community art projects in Pittwater based around sustainability.

The presentation will also include a part-screening of Plague and the Moonflower, a production by the Armidale community.

The work (written by Ralph Steadman and Richard Harvey) has as its theme the need to transform modern industrial humanity through direct encounters with the natural environment and art.

This talk will be of interest to artists, scientists, community development workers, funding representatives, academics and teachers.

Above: The Plague Demon character was constructed from about 3000 plastic shopping bags tied together over 300 volunteer hours.

Location: Coastal Environment Centre,
Lake Park Rd, Nth Narrabeen

Date: Thursday 29 April 2010

Time: 6:30pm-8:30pm

Cost: $10 per person
